Creston & District Credit Union Signs Agreement for CRITERION® Loans Origination Software Version 4

January 11, 2007 – CRI Canada is pleased to announce that Creston & District Credit Union (CDCU) has signed an agreement to switch to CRITERION Version 4 loans origination software.

For over 10 years, Creston & District Credit Union and CRI Canada have enjoyed a rewarding partnership. CRI's training and attention to lenders has helped CDCU greatly in meeting member needs, says Jim Miller, Chief Executive Officer of CDCU.

"This is a win/win for all parties: when you factor in a comfortable partnership with CRI, the decision to move forward with CRITERION was not that difficult," says Miller. "The CRITERION technology provides us the opportunity to deepen and enhance our relationship with our members, while at the same time reducing our lender workload," added Miller.

"We are absolutely delighted with Creston's decision to upgrade to CRITERION version 4," says Anna Thomas, CRI Canada Vice President, Technology. "Creston & District has been a long-time customer, and we're thrilled about the continued partnership. We're also excited to have Creston & District be the first account in British Columbia to test-drive the Commercial Lending module within CRITERION."

Creston & District Credit Union was first formed in 1951, and has present assets of over 60 million dollars. They offer a broad array of products which provide numerous choices for borrowers, and throughout their history they have been dedicated to contributing to the growth of their credit union in the Creston area.
